

It's been over a month and you're still stuck in the house and, some days, still "dressed" in your bathrobe (is that your cat we see on your head?). "Now," you think, "I should start reading more on Italy and how to be more like a real Italian." With nothing else to do, you pull out a book to find out how Italian you are—really.

Do you drink cappuccino after noon? Put meatballs on top of your spaghetti? Is this what a real Italian does?

We'll make it easier for you than reading a book (which won't give you the real scoop anyway). Take a look at this video from a REAL Italian and see how you measure up!
