

It's a Five-Minute Mystery!

Can You Solve It?

Did you get the answer to the fourth mystery, The Spitting Gun? Here's the solution.

Signora Lucchesi blundered on every move. When she said she picked up the cartridge from the floor, she was lying. A revolver doesn't eject cartridges; the shell remains in the chamber. Her husband couldn't have removed the cartridge from the chamber if he committed suicide. She killed her husband, removed the shell from the chamber, and threw it in the furnace as part of her plan.

The Commissario's final comment: "I wonder what she'll cook up for the jury."

Let's try another one.

Blind Confession

This time instead of reading the mystery, you're invited to watch it. Just click here, turn on the sound, sit back and relax, and watch this broadcast from days gone by.

After watching the video, do you know how the Inspector knows that Fred Johnson is the murderer? If so, submit your solution by following the directions below.

Here's How to Submit Your Solution

Respond to Karen Zimmerman NO LATER THAN 6:00 PM MAY 5. If you're among the first 5 correct solutions, you'll receive a $5 coupon towards the cost of any event we do in the future. It's that simple! But, remember, you can only submit one solution per mystery and you can only win two coupons total. You can continue to guess for future mysteries after you've won twice, but we won't be able to give you any coupons.

You just need to do three things:

1. Prepare an email to bobzkarenz@att.net
2. In the subject line, put "Murder," and,
3. Add your name.

If you've done it right, the Subject line should look like this:

Subject: Murder - Mary Smith

In the body of the message, explain your solution.

You will receive an email confirming that your solution was received and if you were right or wrong. Easy!

REMEMBER:

Don't hit "reply" to this email!

Powered by
GoDaddy Email Marketing®